A suspect in some of the recent incidents of deviant sexual assault in Carbondale has agreed to submit to a polygraph test on Tuesday at the state crime lab in DeSoto.

Carbondale police Lt. Terry Murphy said Friday that the suspect was asked to take the test earlier this week.

The suspect has not been taken into custody and police have "no intent to do so at this time," Murphy said.

Murphy declined to name the suspect. In the last three weeks, three such attacks have been reported to Carbondale police. All three occurred in the block defined by W. College Street and W. Walnut Street, and S. University Avenue and S. Poplar Street between the hours of 9 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

Murphy emphasized the recent development has not slowed a police investigation of those three assaults.

"We are not backing off," he said. "We are continuing with the same vigor as before."

Murphy said it is not known when the results of next Tuesday's lie detector test will be complete.

"It all depends on the workload up there (in DeSoto)," he said.

University police Friday reported no new leads in their search for the man who committed a deviant sexual assault on campus property Sept. 10. That attack occurred on State Street north of Grand Avenue near the water tower.

University police Lt. Marvin Braswell said the assailant is believed to be a different man than the one sought by Carbondale police, because of a difference in the descriptions made by the victims of the attacks.

Braswell said University police have stepped up patrols in the area where the attack occurred.

Haldeman, Mitchell seek early release

WASHINGTON (AP)—H. R. Haldeman, claiming he is a victim of a Richard Nixon smear campaign, and a severely crippled and "truly sorry" John N. Mitchell asked to be freed from jail where they are serving their Watergate sentences.

Mitchell, the former attorney general, suffers "severe destructive degenerative disease" and needs an artificial right hip, his attorney said in a petition for leniency.

"This condition has become extremely painful to the defendant and his mobility has become severely impaired," the petition said, adding that the required surgery is too delicate to be performed within the prison system.

Mitchell and Haldeman, once Nixon's top White House aide, began their eight-year, coverup sentences one day apart in June and they won't be eligible for parole until December 1979. Mitchell, 63, is in prison at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., and Haldeman, 50, at Lompoc, Calif.

Their pleas for reduction of sentence were filed with U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who has granted such petitions in the cases of other well-known Watergate defendants including John Dean, Jeb Stuart Magruder, James W. McCord and Herbert W. Kalmbach.

Sirica may order a hearing on the petitions next week, including also the case of John D. Ehrlichman who had filed for reduction of sentence in June. The three men, with identical sentences of 30 months to eight years, are the only Watergate criminals still in prison.

The Haldeman motion showed again how bitter his relations have become with Nixon, whom he had served for a decade as campaign worker, confidant, and White House chief of staff.

"He has proclaimed to the world that he ordered the destruction of tapes which would have incriminated him," the Haldeman petition said, referring to Nixon remarks in a recently televised interview.

"Nixon's statement is a clear confession of guilt, and moreover, he brags about a desire to destroy incriminating evidence... Somehow, again, he tries to smear Haldeman."

The petition speaks bitterly about the pardon granted the former president and his interviews-for-pay with David Frost.

"Nixon does not care what he now says since he is wrapped in an immunizing pardon and his pockets are lined with $600,000," the petition says, adding that "Haldeman, a Republican criminal" cannot expect the same treatment from Democrat Jimmy Carter as Nixon got from Republican Gerald Ford.

Like Mitchell, Haldeman expressed "his remorse and regret...his contrition and his repentance." Both petitions spoke of heavy financial burdens brought on by the legal defense and imprisonment of Haldeman and Mitchell.

In addition to his arthritic hip, Mitchell said he also suffers from an enlarged heart "all apparently the result of hypertension."

His petition talked of the devastation effect Watergate had on Mitchell's family life but unlike Haldeman's—made no disparaging remarks about Nixon.

Union wants higher salaries

Janitors to vote on possible strike

The union representing the University's 316 custodians will decide Saturday morning whether the janitors will strike effective Monday.

Hollis Harrison, president of Building Service Workers Local 316, said Friday that a strike vote has been called for 8 a.m. Saturday at the Carpenter's Hall, 210 W. Willow St. The janitors have been working without a contract since Aug. 1.

Although Harrison declined to say what is at issue in the union's dispute with the administration, Bob Brewer, former union local president, said Friday that the custodians are asking to be placed on the same salary scales as custodians at SIU's Edwardsville campus.

"All I know is that we make 11 per cent less than they do in Edwardsville," Brewer said. "And this campus is twice as big."

No one representing the University in the dispute could be reached for comment Friday.

If the janitors do strike, at least one faculty representative said that he, too, will walk off the job.

"If they strike, then I'm going to honor their picket lines," said Herbert Donow, an associate professor in English and president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT). "It's all part of the union business. I'll feel committed to join them."

Donow, whose organization is one of three such groups seeking faculty collective bargaining rights on campus, added that he will urge other faculty members to honor the custodian union's picket lines if the strike develops.

This is the second time within the last six months that the building service workers have been working without a contract.

In April the custodians' union and the University worked out a contract agreement, thus ending an eight-month-old dispute. At that time, the janitors had been working without a contract since the previous August.

The issue in that dispute was money also. As Brewer said in April, "We want higher hourly wages to make our salaries more equitable with the salaries of service workers in other state universities."

However, Robert Gentry, vice president for financial affairs, said at the time that the administration was in no position to substantially raise the salaries of the service workers after $4 million was sliced out of SIU's proposed budget the summer before by then-Gov. Daniel Walker.

Bill Daum, a building service worker, cleans the floor at Morris Library. The building service union will decide on Saturday whether campus janitors will go on strike Monday.

Highland pair are Parents of the Day

By Ron Morgan
Staff Writer

Julius and Shirley Luber have been coming to SIU Parent's day for the last two years but this year instead of watching football and munching popcorn in the stands with their daughter Jeannie, the Lubers will be honored on the field in McAndrew Stadium as parents of the year.

Jeannie, a senior in Radio and T.V. entered her parents' name in a drawing he'd Wednesday to select the lucky set of parents.

Julius Luber said he was "delighted by the honor." The Lubers are from Highland. Parents' Day 77 will include numerous activities throughout Saturday and Sunday to help parents get acquainted with SIU.

"The whole concept is to let parents see what the college environment is like," said Tom Hadley, coordinator of Student Activities.

Saturday morning's activities begin at 9 a.m. when the Intramural and Recreation Sports Building will be open to all parents, families, and spouses of students who present a valid I.D. and fee statement.

The Hospitality and Information area also opens at 9 a.m., offering Parents' Day schedules, tickets for the Southern Hospitality Barbecue, entertainments, and refreshments until 1 p.m. in the Gallery Lounge of the Student Center.

Starting at 9:30 a.m., the campus tour train will leave from the front of the Student Center every half hour until 1 p.m. for those wanting to give their parents an overall view of SIU.

Mini-classes, designed to give parents an inside view of the classrooms here begin at 10 a.m. with a design class offered in the Student Center Kaskaskia Room and a botany class at the SIU Greenhouse. At 11 a.m. an astronomy mini-class is offered in the Student Center Missouri Room. Offered at the same time is a "student life styles" class in the Illinois Room.

From 10 a.m. to noon arts and crafts demonstrations will be given in the Craft Shop of the Student Center while outside on the South Patio arts and crafts will be on sale from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Bowling, billiards and football are offered free in the Student Center for the parents' morning relaxation from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. as well as a series of SIU-related films in Ballroom C beginning at 10:30 a.m. Two plays will be presented in the center Saturday morning starting with the Southern Players' presentation of "Androcles and the Lion" at 10 a.m. on the South Patio. At 11:30 a.m., the Black Theatre Group will perform "Ulysses" in the Big Muddy Room. More entertainment is available at 10:30 a.m. when the Saluki Swingers square dance in the Roman Room.

If all this activity works up your appetite the Parents' Day Buffet is available in the Student Center Restaurant from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. During the serving hours two fashion shows will be presented in the restaurant, one by the International students at 11:30 a.m. and one by the Clothing and Textiles department at 12:30 p.m.

Afternoon activities include football with the Salukis meeting the Sycamores of Indiana State at 1:30 p.m. in McAndrew Stadium and an air show at Southern Illinois Airport beginning at 2:30 p.m. including the U.S. Navy Blue Angels, the U.S. Army Golden Knights Skydiving team, and World War Two hero Colonel Gregory "Pappy" Boyington.

Following the Saluki football game parents are invited to the University House for the Southern Hospitality Barbecue from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. featuring tours of the President's home, jazz entertainment "Thieves by Night" and a barbecued chicken dinner.

Persons attending are requested to ride the shuttle buses out to the University House because of the limited parking facilities. These will run from the front of the Student Center approximately every fifteen minutes. In case of rain this event will be held in the Student Center Renaissance Room.

Saturday night from 7 to 8 p.m. the University Choir, Men's Glee Club, and Southern Singers will perform in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Following that from 8:30 p.m. until midnight there will be ballroom dancing to the sounds of the John Birchler Orchestra and comedy by Steve Moore in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Sunday morning parents are invited to a Sunday Buffet Brunch in the Student Center Ballrooms from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

Lance: Overdrafts accepted banking practice

WASHINGTON (AP)—Budget Director Bert Lance told a divided Senate committee that overdraft checking accounts once were an accepted banking practice in his Georgia hometown but indicated he wouldn't overdraft his account again. Lance explained that the Calhoun First National Bank had permitted overdrafts because bank officers knew everyone in town and they also wanted to attract business. "Overdraft as such is not an ugly word," he told the committee. "To say an overdraft constitutes an unethical situation, I don't think that's the case." Lance explained that when the overdrafts were ordered stopped in 1974, "we responded quickly and effectively and the practice was done away with."

Pregnancy disability benefits ok'd by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted to require employers to include pregnancy benefits in any workers' disability plans they offer. The legislation, if enacted by the House, would overcome the effects of a controversial 1976 Supreme Court ruling that held company disability plans do not have to provide pregnancy or child birth benefits. Employers who offer disability benefits also would have to offer them to cover pregnancies and pregnancy-related disabilities under the proposed bill. It would amend the 1964 Civil Rights Act to prohibit sex discrimination in disability plans on the basis of pregnancy.

Parents' expectations may lead to child abuse

BELLEVILLE (AP)—Some parents who care too much for their children become frustrated with imperfection and lash out at them with tragic consequences, says a specialist in child abuse. More than 60,000 cases of child abuse—many of them involving tots only weeks old—were reported in the U.S. last year. Physicians who have studied child abuse claim that it may be the largest killer of infants in the nation.

Senate rejects cancer warning in saccharin ads

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rejected a proposal to require a cancer warning to be included in television and radio advertisements of products containing the artificial sweetener saccharin. Saccharin, the only artificial sugar substitute remaining on the market, has been linked with bladder cancer in laboratory animals.

The FDA announced earlier this year that it planned to ban saccharin as a food additive in products such as diet sodas. This generated a storm of public protest and many medical and scientific authorities questioned the wisdom of removing it from the market. The FDA acted under a federal law requiring the banning of any food additive shown to cause cancer in either man or animals.

Liquor board criticizes Plaza Lounge conditions

By Dennis Sullivan
Staff Writer

A Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board inspection team has criticized the Plaza Lounge, 825 E. Main, because the bartender took 15 minutes to locate a fire extinguisher when the inspection team made its visit.

Bill Herr, chairman of the Liquor Advisory Board and inspection team member informed the Board that is was also necessary for the bartender to call the owner in order to find out where the extinguisher was.

The team also expressed disapproval about the conditions of the restrooms and the office. "There was leaking and flooding in the restrooms," Herr said, "but part of that might have been because it was a rainy night."

Herr termed the condition of the office "practically a fire hazard," and called for action from Carbondale Code Enforcement.

Board member Lelani Weiss explained that Carbondale Code Enforcement inspections of the Plaza Lounge made prior to the Liquor Board inspection were concerned with "structural violations" because the Fire Prevention Bureau was concerned with "fire codes and fire extinguishers."

When contacted Thursday, John Yow, head of Carbondale Code Enforcement, said that he was unaware of the situation, saying that an inspection made by Code Enforcement several weeks earlier had not resulted in any problems in finding a fire extinguisher. Yow explained that ignorance about where fire extinguishers are kept is nothing new, noting that bars often have a turnover in bartenders and that not all necessary information is always provided. "I don't know if it's true in this case," he responded, "but usually a new bartender isn't told where the fire extinguishers are kept."

Herr recommended sending a letter to the owner of the Plaza Lounge telling him that Code Enforcement had been contacted.

Board member and former SIU attorney, John Huffman, however, asked that City Attorney John Womick be contacted to learn if the Liquor Board could issue citations "like parking tickets" to bar owners who don't meet board standards, urging that the Liquor Advisory Board take a more active role in dealing with bar owners.

In other business, the board approved the transfer of a class A liquor license which permits the sale of all types of alcohol for the Washington Street Underground, 109 N. Washington St., from ABC Liquor Stores Inc., to Rosebud, Ind.

The board gave a first hearing to John Karagiannis's request that his store, Dairy King at 407 S. Illinois Ave., receive a class B license permitting it to sell beer. Karagiannis must return to the next board meeting for a decision.

The board also gave a second hearing to Karagiannis's request for a class A license for his restaurant, Zorba's, located at 501 E. Walnut St. At the hearing it was approved.

Simon to break ground for Carbondale's Federal Building

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, is scheduled to attend the groundbreaking ceremony for the new Carbondale Federal Building at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Following the ceremony, Simon will attend the SIU-Indiana State football game at 1:30 p.m. in McAndrew Stadium.

The groundbreaking ceremony will take place at the building site at University and Cherry streets.

Simon will be joined in the ceremony by William B. Morrison, acting regional administrator of the General Services Administration (GSA) and Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert.

The Federal Building, which is expected to be completed by the spring of 1979, will cost an estimated $3.7 million. The building will house about 80 employees from various federal offices now in Carbondale.

GSA officials in Chicago say the office complex will be the first federal building in the entire country to include all energy conservation techniques and devices from its inception.

The officials say other buildings have had energy conservation measures added on after they have been built.

Day care hearing slated

The Illinois Commission on the Status of Women is scheduled to hold a hearing on day care in Southern Illinois at 1 p.m. Monday in the Student Center Illinois Room.

The hearing, which will be open to the public, will begin with a presentation about day care of the elderly and infirm by George Aubner, acting director for programming and planning for the Illinois Department on Aging.

Commission members Rep. Susan Catania, R-Chicago, and Woods

Bowman, D-Chicago, will attend the hearing, which is the third to be held in the state.

Previous hearings have been in Chicago and Springfield.

Testimony is scheduled from representatives of the Sunrise School of Anna, the Haynes Comprehensive Child Center in Carbondale, the Ananda Narga Yoga Society of Southern Illinois and John Allen, the Southern Illinois coordinator for the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

Officials expect regular utility blackouts in '79

NEW YORK (AP) — Planned neighborhood blackouts or government-imposed restrictions on the use of electricity are almost certain as early as 1979, utility officials said Friday.

Government officials agreed that a power shortage is coming, but said it might not require such restrictions quite that soon.

"This is a critical situation," said Larry Frech, a researcher for the Edison Electric Institute, a utility group that collects statistics on electricity usage and reliability. "Other energy matters are getting a lot of attention, but this is going to be one of the biggest problems."

The Edison Institute has been warning for several months that electricity reserves would fall below the level considered prudent in the near future. And this week, the National Electric Reliability Council — a group formed in 1968 by U.S. power companies after the Northeast blackout of 1965 — released the most pessimistic report to date.

The council's report cites governmental and environmental objections to the locations and designs of power plants, "lack of timely and adequate rate relief" and confusion over which fuel federal officials prefer for use by power companies.

"The continuation of these restraints will surely result in forced curtailments of electric power starting as early as 1979 and increasing in severity in the period beyond," the report said.

The curtailments would include blackouts rotated by neighborhood, reduced voltage throughout a power system and possibly government-ordered conservation measures, the council and federal officials said.

The council said the consequences of the curtailments would be "Adverse changes in lifestyle of the American people; an era of an energy limited economy for the United States; threats to the health and welfare of all citizens."

Norton Savage, chief of power supply and reporting for the Federal Power Commission, said the FPC agrees with the industry report.

"The only real difference between us and them is that they see problems beginning in 1979," Savage said. "We don't see any problems until 1981. And by 1986, if some nuclear generating units don't come into service as planned, there will be much bigger problems."

Signs number intersections, speed emergency services

By Andris Straumanis
Staff Writer

Drivers may have been confused by them when they first appeared throughout Jackson County.

They are those green and white signs located at the intersections of many roads in the county, and they are called intersection signs.

The signs, which were set up about a month ago by county officials, are used by such services as ambulance, fire and police, Vonceil Reames, a secretary in the Superintendent of Highway's office in Murphysboro, said Thursday.

The signs make it easier for those services to locate a house or the scene of an accident.

Section lines are used to coordinate the placement and numbering of the intersection signs, Reames said.

Each township in the county is six square miles and one section is equal to one square mile, so there are 36 sections in each township.

The signs show only two coordinates, north and east, because numbering starts in the southern part of the county and continues north, and from the western border to the east.

She also said the highway supervisor's office is in the process of assigning coordinate numbers to houses in Jackson County.

If a person who needs an ambulance tells the ambulance service his house coordinates, "The ambulance would almost be able to pinpoint it, within a tenth of a mile," Reames said.

Asked if motorists could make use of the signs, Reames said, "You should be able to use them."

She said maps of the county showing the road numbers can be obtained free of charge at the Superintendent of Highways office in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro.

However, there is a limit of one map per family.

Grade school enrollment drops

Although early attendance figures show a decline in enrollment in Carbondale elementary schools, the cost of local education has not dropped District 95 Board Superintendent George Edwards said.

Attendance taken in local schools on the sixth day of classes, a traditional accounting day for enrollment figures, show that 1,619 pupils were in classes, a drop of 190 from attendance on the same day last year.

Edwards said that schools throughout the country are experiencing lower enrollment, and that Carbondale's schools are affected by this decline.

Edwards also said that the turnover of personnel at SIU each year is also a factor in the enrollment drop.

"Board investigations of the enrollment declines do not indicate any general trends," Edwards said. "People are leaving Carbondale for all points in the country, and much of the movement is due to the University."

Largest enrollment declines were shown in the junior high and kindergarten classes, which lost 16 and 40 students respectively.

Edwards blamed the decline in enrollment on these levels on a decreasing birth rate and graduation of a large eighth grade class last year.

Despite the enrollment drops, Edwards said that the cost of operating area schools has remained high, as the cost per student in Carbondale has risen to $1,756 per year.

Although the cost of educating students has risen, the board this year was able to stay within the same $3.1 million budget figure of last year due to the enrollment decline, Edwards said.

Edwards said the board has succeeded in a more equitable redistribution of class size because of the lower enrollment figures and the necessity to redesign the school boundaries after the Brush School fire last year.

The recommended class size ceiling is 25, and in only a few cases is the number exceeded. Edwards said 50 of the 58 classrooms in use have 25 or fewer students and that 26 of those have 22 or fewer.

Edwards said he has recommended the formation of a board of education subcommittee to develop a study project elementary enrollments five years to assist in future school planning.

The board gave Edwards tentative approval for the study.

Rental law hurts tenants

The good intentions of legislators don't always lead to good laws. The new Illinois rent deposit interest law, signed by Gov. Thompson last week, is a prime example. Despite good intentions, the law does not perform its intended functions.

The new law, sponsored by two Chicago-area legislators, is intended primarily to aid renters by requiring owners of large apartment complexes to pay tenants five per cent interest on their security deposits.

It sounds great, but it ignores one basic problem: where would the money for the security deposit interest come from? The Student Tenant Union says it's going to come from increased rent, and that's not going to aid Carbondale tenants, it's going to hurt them.

Phil Klaffer, student tenant union coordinator, says the newly required deposit interest just increases operating costs for landlords, who will in turn pass this cost on to their tenants via higher rent.

Raul Ayala, manager of the Wall Street Quadrangles, agrees this is standard procedure for Carbondale landlords. Virginia Hopkins, manager of Benning Property, said that if other area landlords raise their rent as a result of the new law, then Benning Property "probably will" too.

And no matter what the state intended, the required security deposit interest of five percent is an additional operating cost for apartment owners. It must be made up somewhere. The new law forbids an apartment owner to put the security deposit money in an interest-bearing account. The state is in effect saying that the landlord can't earn interest but he still must pay it.

The big question is where the interest money will come from. In this situation, the large apartment owner has only two logical options: he can abolish the security deposit altogether, which isn't likely; or he can raise the rent in order to cover the cost of the five per cent security deposit interest—which is very likely indeed.

Besides being ineffective in aiding renters, the new law also is too limited in scope. It stipulates that only apartment complexes of 25 units or more are covered, but not trailer courts, rooming houses, dormitories or smaller apartment buildings. Why shouldn't all tenants' paying security deposits be covered by a law intended to aid renters? Why single out apartment dwellers in large complexes?

The rent deposit interest law is poorly conceived and will not help renters. This attempt by the state to aid tenants is bungling and inept. In designing the law, legislators ignored a basic economic law: money doesn't grow on trees, and neither does rent deposit interest.

The good old days are long gone in entertainment

By Arthur Hoppe

Scene: The Creativity Division of the American Broadcasting System. One of ABS's top script writers, Bill Shakespeare, is conferring with ABS's Creativity Director, Morton Slocke, about a manuscript.

Slocke: Let's see, Bill, you want to do a three-hour special called, "Othello, The Moor of Venice"? Sorry, but three-hour specials are out this season. Can you pad it out to twelve hours? Then we can run it over six nights in a row like "Roots." That's big this year. And by the way, Bill, what's a Moor?

Shakespeare: That's a black man, Mort. Othello's the general in command of the Venetian army. He's married to this beautiful woman, Desdemona, who...

Slocke: Hold it, Bill. A black Italian general? You want both the Mafia and the NAACP on our backs? Now black is sock to this season so that's fine. Maybe I can get Redd Foxx. But you better make him from Venice, Calif. And why a general, Bill?

Shakespeare: I see him as a heroic figure, Mort, buffeted by the forces of good and evil, swept up in a maelstrom of love, jealousy...

Slocke: Yeah, sure. But there aren't that many black generals, Bill. The viewers won't identify. I got it! He drives a garbage truck. And he's married to this cute chick, Dessie. We'll sign Diahann Carroll for the part.

Shakespeare: Desdemona's white, Mort.

Slocke: Oh. Now look, Bill, ABS has been way out in front on this thing. Weren't we the first to have a black quiz show contestant? But miscegenation, Bill... We've got to think of all our viewers in the South, including South Boston. Just leave the casting to me. Now what's the hook?

Shakespeare: Jealousy. The villain, Iago...

Slocke: No Italian villains, Bill. Make it O'Brien. The Irish never complain.

Shakespeare: ... plants Desdemona's handkerchief in the bedroom of Othello's lieutenant, Cassio...

Slocke: Assistant garbage truck driver, Bill.

Shakespeare: ... And when Othello confronts her, she falls to her knees, pleading with her lord and master...

Slocke: Stop right there, Bill. The women's libbers would kill us. They've got to be equals. Especially in bed. You do have them in bed together?

Shakespeare: Yes, that's when Othello smothers her.

Slocke: Bill, you've got to be kidding. Haven't you been reading Variety? Violence is out this season. Sex is in. Nothing explicit, you know. Just a lot of good healthy snickers.

Shakespeare: But...

Slocke: No "buts," Bill. What you've obviously got here is the makings of a swell black family sitcom. It just needs a lot of work. Now tell me about this other script of yours, "Hamlet." What's it about, a small town? Like "The Waltons"?

Shakespeare (sighing): Not yet.

Why did Dunning take complaints to press, not to EAP?

The D.E. has recently made it a practice to take absurd cheap shots at the Student Senate and primarily the Environmental Action Party (EAP). The most recent attack came in Phyllis Mattera's article concerning Sam Dunning's criticism of the EAP.

I first would question Dunning for such an array of stupid arguments. I also question the D.E. for printing these views without question of their validity. The article does give the opposing views from Dennis Adamczyk. However, it fails to question Dunning on the validity of his claims.

Mattera's article fails in the journalist's two primary tasks: gathering the facts and presenting them objectively. Her article states in the first sentence that Sam Dunning spoke out against "slow progress" of the Environmental Action Party. The words "slow progress" are not attributed to Dunning therefore the reader would assume that it is a common reportable fact that the EAP is moving slowly. This issue surely can only be an opinion. However, through the biased judgement of the D.E. I suppose it appears to be a fact.

Beyond the D.E.'s lack of judgment there is an even more serious question. Why did Sam Dunning express his complaints to the press first and not his party members? Before every senate meeting the EAP holds a caucus to air the views of the individual members. Dunning, however, has not once mentioned his views concerning the EAP's progress during these caucuses.

The most appalling aspect of this outburst by Dunning, however, is the stupidity of his arguments. He says the EAP has moved slowly in enacting its platform. First of all the Senate has been in session for less than a month. In this time the senate meetings have been jammed with business. Most of the senate actions so far have been organizational. But, is it not a new government's first task to organize its governing process? I say new government because over half the senate members are serving their first term. The EAP has also begun formulating platform legislation as Adamczyk has pointed out.

Dunning has also made remarks concerning his independence from the Party's views. These remarks show a certain paranoia. Dunning initially told the D.E. that he would not join the EAP. Yet, soon after, he did in fact join.

Since joining Dunning has been a very effective worker within the party. But his actions outside the party show little professional knowledge of his field of study: political science. Perhaps Dunning should place his ego aside for a while and concentrate on those actions which he does excel at: running an efficient government.

Perhaps, the D.E. should also confine its subjective remarks to the editorial page where they belong instead of labeling them news.

D.E. ignored responsibility to cover rape forum

On Wednesday, Sept. 14, 1977, approximately 200 concerned women and men held a well-publicized public forum to discuss the current rape crisis in this community. The county, city and University police forces were represented at the forum and disseminated information of the severity of the current situation.

I feel confident that the women and men who attended the forum will make an effort to share with others the information they received. It is unfortunate that on an issue of such critical importance—at such a critical time—your newspaper was not present to cover the event.

The fact that the scheduled D.E. reporter was unable to attend the forum does not relieve you, the editors, from your moral and professional responsibility of seeing to it that someone covered the meeting. This could mean that the editors would have had to miss a couple of hours of sleep to do it themselves, but I feel that concern for our safety is worth it.

I have saved a copy of the D.E. issued Thursday, Sept. 15, to serve as a constant reminder of the priorities established by the management of your paper. I give credit to Michael Gunsaulus for a fine article on skydiving, but I challenge the editors of the D.E. to defend the front-page coverage of skydiving while reporting nothing on the community's rape crisis forum.

'Mississippi Showboat' review missed the boat

As both a performer in "Mississippi Showboat" and a reviewer-critic for various publications, I was extremely disappointed with Steve Rhodes' review in the Daily Egyptian Sept. 13.

Mr. Rhodes did no research, it seems. "Showboat" was not advertised as "chorus girl" action or Mardi Gras elaborateness, but as a production of poetry, dance and music. He didn't bother even to sit through it.

Mr. Rhodes' preconceptions and evident disinterest caused him to miss the good that went on. "Showboat" hadn't the funds to be elaborate, but it wasn't set up for an audience to admire the stage work. Audience focus was directed towards the performers—their words, their dance, their music and song. The majority of this was original material. That was the foundation "Showboat" was performed on, not a gaudy, plastic, paper-flowered staging.

Steve Rhodes was so busy lamenting the loss of chorus girls and lavish stage sets he didn't mention once the work of the performers—or how well it was done. It was as much an insult to Daily Egyptian readers as to the show.

Redhead presents versatile show

By Doug Durako
Staff Writer

Redhead, a Chicago-based folk-rock band, brought their versatile sound to a very small but very appreciative crowd in an enthusiastic show Thursday night at the Student Center.

Original tunes written by the group's organizer, Mike Dunbar, highlighted the show. It's getting very difficult these days to make original country, rock or folk music sound original. Dunbar's tunes sound original and blend these three musical strains well.

From the slow western swing rendition of "Lady be Good," an old George Gershwin tune, to "Johnny B. Goode" in loud and rowdy three-part harmony Redhead kept the audience tapping and clapping.

Mike Dunbar and Betsy Redhead share the lead vocal and rhythm guitar functions in the band. Redhead's rowdy but clear voice mixes well with the mellowness of Dunbar's voice.

A Review

Backup vocals were added by the group's lead guitar, and mandolin player, Rich Clark, and by the bass player, Norm Siegel. The drummer was Kevin Dooley, a relatively new addition to Redhead.

Extremely tight crystal clear harmony makes Redhead work, along with warm audience appeal, well-written music and an occasional funny joke. Redhead is a band that believes in having fun while on stage through their music, and they are good enough to pull it off.

Louise Dimecili, a charming and talented solo folk artist from Chicago, opened the show with an hour of good guitar playing combined with crystal clear vocals and a sweet smile.

Dimecili went through pain songs, train songs, farm songs and "people liberation" songs in her show which lasted just under an hour.

Dimecili's folk guitar style is a result of many strenuous hours of practice, training and teaching. She began playing guitar while in music school at Drake University and has taught guitar at the Old Town School of Folk Music, where she met several members of the Redhead band.

Betsy Redhead, Mike Dunbar and Norm Siegel are originally from the Chicago area. Dunbar is a teacher and currently co-chairman at the Old Town School of Folk Music. The tightness of the group reflects the seasoning that is acquired through several years of performing and recording.

Mike Smith is producing Redhead's second album, to be released this winter. Many songs written by Smith are on the album and were featured in the show.

Jimmy Buffet songs, Creedence Clearwater songs and old country standards like "Truck Driving Man," made up the rest of the versatile performance.

The country ballad seemed to have been born in Betsy Redhead's heart when she sang a couple of traditional tear-jerkers straight from the hills of Tennessee.

With fluid movement from folk to country to rock to western swing, Redhead took the audience along for the ride, with the bass player adding a few raucous riffs and the lead guitar player occasionally throwing the lighter touch of the mandolin in on the mellower numbers.

First October events slated, Zappa will play Homecoming

Homecoming weekend will have its share of hilarity as students are invited to spend "An Evening with Frank Zappa" at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1 in the Arena.

Zappa's live shows are a one-of-a-kind experience and totally unpredictable. Combining a zany wit and a sharp sociological perspective, Zappa amazes crowds with his technical facility on the guitar and his often complicated, progressive rock arrangements.

No date has been given for ticket sales, but Arena promotion manager, Kathy Pratt, said they will go on sale "sometime next week."

First day ticket sales will start at 8 a.m. at the Arena Special Events Tickets Office and all tickets after the first day will also be sold at the Student Center Central Ticket Office.

Tickets will be $6, $5.50 and $5 with no student discounts. Pratt said there will be no sign-up list and no block or group sales.

"People can show up in line and buy as many tickets as they want," Pratt said. "We're pleased to have a show for the Homecoming weekend."

Tickets for the Barnum and Bailey-Ringling Bros. Circus, "The Greatest Show on Earth," are on sale now at the Arena Special Events Ticket Office for four shows on Oct. 11 and 12.

Two shows will be held at 3:30 and 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 11 with two more shows held at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 12. Student discounts are available for the matinee shows on both days. Ticket prices are $6, $5 and $4. Chair seats for $6 are available for the Wednesday matinee only.

Blue Angels' precision overcomes danger: Pilot

By Pam Ashley
Student Writer

Navy Lt. Vance Parker, who routinely flies his skyhawk jet at 1,000 m.p.h. and misses planes flying at him by 15 to 20 feet, doesn't consider his line of work dangerous.

The Blue Angels, the Navy's precision flying team, are so proficient at what they do, he claims, that there is no real danger. Parker feels this way, in spite of the fact that he is on the precision flying team as a replacement for a pilot killed in practice earlier this year.

"I don't consider it dangerous if it's handled properly," Parker said Friday.

Parker is one of the six members of the Blue Angels who will be flying in the Southern Illinois Air Show, held this weekend at Southern Illinois Airport, in conjunction with the Murphysboro Apple Festival and SIU's Parents' Day Weekend.

The airport opens to the public each morning at 10 a.m. The air show starts at 2:30 p.m., Saturday and Sunday with the Blue Angels flying at 4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Admission to the show is $1 for children under 12 and $2 for adults.

Parker, who flies one of the solo planes in the show also spoke to Carbondale High School students Thursday and answered their questions.

"What does it feel like upside down?" he was asked.

"Exactly like you hung upside down from a swingset," he replied.

The skyhawks, the planes the Blue Angels use, are modified to be able to fly upside down for a long time, Parker told the students.

SIU to entertain top caliber schools in men's winter athletics schedules

Saluki fans will be treated to some fine intercollegiate competition this winter. The gymnastics, swimming, wrestling and indoor track teams will all face strong schedules.

Coach Bob Steele's swimmers will host the No. 2 and 4 teams in the nation of last year in Alabama and Indiana at the Recreation Building pool. The swimmers will also have some meets with Wisconsin and Illinois and will host the National Independent Conference championships.

The wrestlers of Coach Linn Long will again confront some of the nation's finest teams in the Arena. On the agenda for the grapplers is a home meet with national power Oklahoma State, as well as meets with Lehigh, Louisiana State, Illinois and Oklahoma.

Coach Bill Meade's gymnastics squad, which finished eighth in the nation last year, will host an impressive array of talent at the Arena this winter. Among the list of national powers coming to SIU are defending NCAA co-champion Oklahoma, LSU, Iowa State, Nebraska and Penn State.

The indoor track team doesn't schedule home meets because it does not have an indoor facility, but Coach Lew Hartzog's runners will again face a tough road schedule. The defending Missouri Valley Conference champions will open with a triangular at Lawrence, Kan. They will also travel to Wisconsin for a dual meet in addition to the Illinois Intercollegiate and the MVC championships.

Dempsey sees evenly matched game

By George Csulik
Staff Writer

The Saluki football team went against a bigger, more experienced team last weekend in the Temple Owls, and beat them on their own ground, 24-20. This week, the competition will come back to earth in the form of the Indiana State Sycamores.

The 1:30 p.m. Parent's Day contest at McAndrew Stadium is the first home game of the year for SIU.

"We are going to have to be physical and execute well, not to mention avoiding mistakes," Head Coach Rey Dempsey said. "We have to be ready."

Dempsey said the team practiced with more confidence this week after last week's game which he said was his "most satisfying victory as a head coach."

Both teams are evenly matched in size and depth, according to Dempsey.

"I don't think either of us has a powerful team, so it will be a battle. Unless one team gets hot, nobody will win by a lot of points," Dempsey said.

The Associated Press picks the Salukis 10-point favorites to defeat the Sycamores Saturday.

The Sycamores, 25-7 losers to McNeese State last weekend, hold an 8-5 series edge over SIU.

Before last year's 21-2 victory at Terre Haute, the Salukis had lost five straight to the Sycamores, including a 23-21 heartbreaker at McAndrew Stadium in 1975. Doug Vandercook kicked a 50-yard field goal with no time left on the clock for the win.

The Sycamores run a wishbone offense but have added passing plays that can throw a defense off-balance.

"The quick-slant pass is the best they use," Dempsey said. "They used it a lot last weekend against McNeese and nearly broke it a couple of times."

The Sycamore running backs, like SIU's Bernell Quinn, are small, but quick, Dempsey said, and they have a "big burly fullback" in Jim Schultz who Dempsey calls a good blocker.

"Their runners are good at cutting back. They can move one way and then cut back against the grain."

The Sycamore linebackers line up close to the line than most defenses, Dempsey said. They will tend to "crash" their linebackers a lot.

"Marty Murray is one of their better defensive players. He is a linebacker and, along with Mark Kupets (a defensive end), make their defense an aggressive one," Dempsey said.

The Salukis are coming off a 125-yard performance by sophomore Clarence Robison in last week's victory. Bernell Quinn ran for 97 yards.

game award last week. Byron Honore took the offensive lineman award, and linebacker Billy Hadfield and cornerback John Palermo took the defensive honors. Palermo was named Valley defensive back of the week after he caused a fumble, broke up a pass and intercepted a pass against Temple.

"This is an important game for us because it is a Missouri Valley Conference game. We need to get Jack into the race, so we need a win," Dempsey said.

Saluki offensive tackle Jack Vagas is a probable starter in the game. Defensive tackle Tom Piha will be ready to go, but will not start. Gary Linson is still "gimpy," Dempsey said, but he has been working out with the team. He may be ready by next week.

The only change in the line-up is in the offensive line where Chuck Blume will start at guard in place of Rick Huff.

Coach: Running emotional

By Steve Cooran
Staff Writer

Cross country running is more mental exercise than physical, according to Don Merrick, assistant coach for the men's cross country team.

"Running is done on a 90 per cent emotional basis and a 10 per cent physical basis," Merrick said. "You need to know each runner individually and train them in a way so that nobody gets discouraged or fatigued and is not able to compete."

Merrick, in his second year at SIU following two years as head cross country coach at Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, concerns himself with the runners' pace and rhythm in addition to attitude.

Merrick had the team running six miles in the rain Wednesday, and he thinks that is a major reason for the teams success.

"To take them to a point where they can apply themselves even in adverse conditions is what it's all about," Merrick said. "They know they can do it physically but doubt that it is worth it mentally."

Merrick sees his most important as getting together with the head coach, and developing a sound training program.

"The assistant coach has to complement the head coach as far as philosophy goes," Merrick said. "If the head coach trains one way and the assistant trains another way, you won't get much done."

If there is a major decision to be made, Merrick exchanges his points-of-view with those of head coach Lew Hartzog.

"We have a difference of opinion in small things but we can work them out," Merrick said. "I handle cross country as far as training goes and Lew takes care of the administration."

Merrick has the team running five or six miles at 6:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. everyday.

The team runs about the same distance everyday but Merrick tries to divide it up in different ways.

"We have prediction workouts for the runners to learn pace. The runner will try to predict how fast he can run the course," Merrick said. "It is semi-motivational for the runners."

By spending so much time with the team, Merrick admits he has a tendency to become too close with some of the runners.

"From time to time, I probably got too close to some of the guys," Merrick said. "For the first part of the season I run with the team. But this can turn out bad if you get close to them and then one day you have to discipline them very harshly or cut someone. So after the season gets well underway I discipline them more and I don't get too close."

O'Brien to be on CBS evening news

Bill O'Brien, SIU professor of recreation and official for the National Football League, will be on the CBS evening news at 5:30 p.m. Saturday on KFVS-TV, Channel 12.

He will be part of a feature on the other side of the life of an NFL official.

O'Brien, a field judge for the NFL for the past 11 years, will be featured with Referee Don Wedge of Troy, Ohio, and Line Judge Dean Look of Lansing, Mich.

A film crew came to SIU Sept. 8, and took footage of the campus, O'Brien's workouts in the morning, and his class.

The crew will combine film of three officials, who are on the same crew, with footage from last weekend's game between the Detroit Lions and Cleveland Brown, according to O'Brien. The crew will mix action shots of the officials with various interviews done by commentator Roger Kelley.
